3. DISCUSSION:

- 25X9 a. Due to the varied nature of the Inspector General's activities, it is not possible or desirable to make rigid assignments of duties and responsibilities to the proposed positions on either an organizational or type-of-case basis. However, it has been indicated by the Inspector General that the GS-17 position will function as Deputy and 'alter ego' with additional duties as Team Captain on inspection projects, while the GS-16 position will function as an additional Team Captain. The arrangement is similar to that prevailing in the Department of the Navy, whereby the Naval Inspector General has two immediate assistants of Rear Admiral rank; namely, one position is Deputy Naval Inspector General and Senior Member On-Site Survey Party Number 1, and the other position is Senior Member On-Site Survey Party Number 2.

- b. By comparison with other similar positions in the Agency, in particular the Chief and Deputy Chief, Inspection and Review Staff, DD/P presently approved at GS-17 and GS-16 respectively, the proposed positions are justified from a classification standpoint.

- c. The assignment of [ ] as a GS-16, to the proposed GS-17 position in the Inspector General's Staff as announced in CIA Notice [ ] increases the number of supergrade employees in the Office of the Director to seven or a total of two over the allocated ceiling.

- d. In addition it will be necessary to reserve a space in the Office of the Director for the re-employment of [ ] by CIA at such time as required, since his last official assignment in CIA was in that Office.

- e. If the proposed GS-16 position in the Inspector General's Staff is to be obligated an additional ceiling space is necessary.

4. CONCLUSIONS:

Four additional supergrade ceiling spaces are necessary in the Office of the Director to complete the actions proposed above.

5. ACTION RECOMMENDED:

- a. That distribution of the unobligated supergrade spaces be made to provide for the actions proposed in the Office of the Director.

- b. That upon re-distribution four supergrade spaces be added to the Office of the Director.

- c. That if the above is not feasible, immediate steps be taken by the DD/A to secure appropriate Bureau of the Budget approval to increase by four the present Agency Supergrade Ceiling of [ ] [ ] Public Law positions.

- d. That upon satisfactory solution of the ceiling allocation, the positions be approved as proposed.
